"A generous and joyful Cotes-du-Rhone rosé with plenty of power, but also very good freshness. So much red-berry, nectarine and orange-peel character. Some real structure means that this won't fade away if you forget a bottle in a corner for a few months.

Drink or hold."

"Bright orange. Ripe red berries, tangerine and succulent flowers and herbs on the nose. In a broad, weighty style, imparting juicy raspberry and bitter cherry flavors and a spicy snap of white pepper. Finishes smooth and long, with the cherry and floral notes repeating. This is definitely a wine better suited to being served with food than by itself - this is a Tavel producer, after all, and one of the very best of that region.- Josh Reynolds"
