

Bodegas San Dionisio

Spain - Castilla-La Mancha

Bodegas San Dionisio is located in the town of Fuenteálamo in Albacete (Castilla - La Mancha). For centuries, from generation to generation, the winemakers have developed cultivation techniques to take full advantage of the exceptionally hard conditions of the climate and soil. The result is a small production (3,000 kilos per hectare) and a slow ripening process (the most common variety - Monastrell - is harvested at the end of September and all of October) that produces very complex wines with a strong personality, high concentration of aromas and polyphenols.

"Toza" is a Spanish word of rural origin to describe a tree stump.

Monastrell, Tempranillo, Merlot, Syrah, Petit V